keygen for autocad I have searched google for the last 12 hours but I can't find a way to make this work. I downloaded the trial version of autocad for mac, and installed it, and I am trying to use the trial version of autocad to make a pdf file with an embedded raster image of a logo. I have autocad 2010. On the help files, they say that I have to create a key, then go to "applications", and find the application I want to use it with. For some reason I can't find the keygen, the directions say to find it on "applications" and there isn't anything on that folder. Any help? thanks A. On the Help menu, choose Autodesk® AutoCAD® 2010 Help (Expert Edition), and then choose the Import Keygen dialog box. The Import Keygen dialog box is located on the Help menu. It opens to Import Keys dialog box. (Autodesk® AutoCAD® 2010 does not have a "keygen" option in the menus). If you cannot find the Import Keys dialog box, then install it from the autocad 2010 trial cd. If you are using the 2010 edition of AutoCAD, you will need the application registration that you pay for to access the 2010 trial. If you want to install the 2010 edition of AutoCAD from the CD, you need to register the software before installing it from the CD. If you do not register the 2010 edition of AutoCAD, you will only have the trial.
